MARKSCHEME

[40 marks]

Since the rules forbid half marks it is important to find a way to distinguish between more and less serious errors. Otherwise, in this kind of exercise, it can become difficult to reflect the range of performance. The scheme below divides the passage into short sections assigned two, three, four, five or six marks.

In the case of two-mark sections, assign full marks to correct answers or answers with no more than one minor error (tense, number etc.). Candidates with two or three minor errors or one major error should be awarded one mark.

In the case of three-mark sections, assign full marks to correct answers or answers with no more than one minor error (tense, number etc.). Candidates with two or three minor errors or one major error should be awarded two marks. For one mark, candidates should have no more than two major errors, or four minor errors or a combination of one major error and two minor errors.

In the case of four-mark sections, assign full marks to correct answers or answers with no more than one minor error (tense, number etc.). Candidates with two or three minor errors or one major error should be awarded three marks. For two marks, candidates should have no more than two major errors, or four minor errors or a combination of one major error and two minor errors. For one mark, candidates should be ineligible for two marks but should demonstrate some understanding of the section.

In the case of five-mark sections, assign full marks to correct answers or answers with no more than one minor error (tense, number etc.). Two or three minor errors or one major error should be awarded four marks. For three marks, candidates should have no more than two major errors, or four minor errors or a combination of one major error and two minor errors. For two marks, candidates should have no more than three major errors, or six minor errors or a similar combination of one major and minor errors. For one mark, candidates should be ineligible for two marks but should demonstrate some understanding of the section.

I do hope that this will seem fair and reasonably easy to apply. Please mark the boundaries on the scripts you mark, and please put your individual marks in the margin of the scripts (not in the candidates' work), with the total (circled) at the end.
