Directions: Read each summary entry and think about which themes listed in the Themes Key apply to it, then color in those themes in the Theme Tracker. Next, write a few sentences of Analysis to explain how the themes you chose apply to each summary section.

Note: There is not always a definitive set of “correct” answers for which themes should appear in the Theme Tracker. Answers that differ from the ones we propose below should therefore not automatically be treated as incorrect, and in fact can serve as great discussion starters.

Serena Joy comes at midnight and leads her through the house, and gives her instructions on getting to Nick’s apartment over the garage. Offred wonders what measures Serena Joy has taken against the night Guardians. Offred knocks on Nick’s door and he answers.	1	2	3	4	5	6	This scene demonstrates the differences between Serena Joy’s and the Commander’s forms of rebellion. Offred backs up, saying "I made that up." She gives us the real version of events. Nick opened the door and offered her a drag of his cigarette. He looks at her seriously and she feels judged, "stupid and ugly." When she says they should hurry, he says he could just masturbate into a bottle. She tries to be sympathetic to the difficulty, and he says he gets paid. They quote old movies, and Offred starts crying. He comforts her, brings her to the bed and kisses her, telling her "no romance," which means they shouldn't sacrifice themselves for one another. They did the deed and Offred made shameful noises.	1	2	3	4	5	6	And it is too good to be true. As with her meetings with the Commander, Offred feels the need to tell a "better" story (at least a more conventionally romantic one) than the one that occurred. She feels some debt to her audience for listening to all her thoughts. At the same time, Offred is honest about her falsehood, ultimately preferring the embarrassing truth.
Offred says it wasn't like that either, that she can only hope to make a reconstruction and "the way love feels is always approximate." During the sex, she imagined Serena Joy judging her for being easy. Afterward, she felt she'd betrayed Luke by responding so enthusiastically.	1	2	3	4	5	6	Offred's claims about love may seem cynical, but they also indicate that love is such a special experience that she can't even properly feel or express it without resorting to the expected clichés.
